Something to Quench Your Thirst

By: Dr. Lynn Jones

Edwin Perkins is one of the greatest inventors that America has ever produced. Now I realize that his name is not mentioned in the same breath with Thomas Alva Edison or Alexander Graham Bell, but in 1927 in Hastings, Nebraska, Edwin Perkins invented something that made a lasting impact on our nation. In 1927, Edwin Perkins invented Kool-Aid. There was a liquid concentrate called "Fruit Smack" that was popular, but shipping it was expensive. So, Edwin Perkins discovered a way to remove the liquid from Fruit Smack, leaving only a powder. He named this powder, "Kool-Aid."

My two brothers, Wayne and Rick, and I have had a life-long love affair with Kool-Aid. When we were growing up, our folks could not afford to supply us with Cokes or other soft drinks. So, mom supplied us with Kool-Aid. It satisfied our thirst and our craving for something sweet at the same time.

Some see Kool-Aid as a childish thing, but, if so, my brothers and I have never put it behind us. I keep a pitcher of grape Kool-Aid in our refrigerator and drink it for a couple of meals every day. Sometimes I drink it between meals. My brother Wayne says that if you put enough sugar in it you can drink it and work all day without eating a meal. As a concession to our advancing age and tendency to gain weight, we usually drink pre-sweetened Kool-Aid, but we feel guilty about making this sort of compromise.

One of the problems with our love for Kool-Aid is that it is an embarrassment to our wives. Danielle won't let me drink it when we have company. She makes me drink tea. For the sake of domestic tranquility, I drink the tea, but as soon as the company leaves I go back to Kool-Aid.

Recently, my younger brother Rick looked in their refrigerator and was overjoyed to see that his wife Vera had made him a big pitcher of red Kool-Aid. It was a hot day and he was working outside so he drank the entire pitcher of Kool-Aid that afternoon. That evening Vera called from the kitchen, "Honey have you seen the mixture that I made up for the hummingbirds and left in the refrigerator?" "Hummingbird mixture?" he said. "I thought that was Kool-Aid." No wonder he was buzzing through his work that afternoon.

Thirst is a basic instinct that God has given all of us. It is both physical and spiritual. Kool-Aid is a great physical thirst quencher, but it does nothing for the deeper thirsts of our souls. When Jesus met the woman at the well, He told her that He could give her living water so that she would never thirst again. Before the day was over, she had discovered this everlasting thirst-quencher.

The poet wrote: "I thirst, not for a cup, but for Christ. I thirst, not for a glass, but for God." So do we all.

I hope to visit with my brother Rick at Christmas time, but he may not be at home. He said that for some reason all that he can think about is going south for the winter.

Lessons Life Taught Me
(Written by Regina Brett, 90 years old)

1. Life isn't fair, but it's still good.
2. When in doubt, just take the next small step.
3. Life is too short to waste time hating someone.
4. Your job won't take care of you when you're sick, your friends and parents will. Stay in touch.
5. Pay off your credit cards every month.
6. Cry with someone. It's more healing than crying alone.
7. Save for retirement starting with your first paycheck.
8. Make peace with your past so it won't mess up the present.
9. It's ok to let your children see you cry.
10. Don't compare your life to other's. You have no idea what their journey is all about.
11. If a relationship has to be a secret, you shouldn't be in it.
12. Everything can change in the blink of an eye. But don't worry; God never blinks.
13. Take a deep breath. It calms the mind.
14. Get rid of everything that isn't useful, beautiful, or joyful.
15. Whatever doesn't kill you, really does make you stronger.
16. It's never too late to have a happy childhood, but the second one is up to you and no one else.
17. No one is in charge of your happiness except you.
18. Frame every so-called disaster with these words, "In five years, will this matter?"
19. Always choose life.
20. Forgive everyone of everything.
21. What other people think of you is none of your business.
22. Time heals almost everything. Give time time.
23. However good or bad a situation is, it will change.
24. Believe in miracles.
25. God loves you because of Who God is, not because of anything you did or didn't do.
26. Don't audit life. Show up and make the most of it now.
27. Your children get only one childhood.
28. If we all threw our problems in a pile and saw everyone else's, we'd grab ours back.
29. The best is yet to come.
30. No matter how you feel, get up, dress up, and show up.
31. Life isn't tied with a bow, but it's still a gift.
